CAPITOL ASSAULT CASE. The Second Chapter Begins in the Police Court.

Tom Marray on the Stand and Disclaims Being Mr. Van Alen

The second chapter of the Capitol assault case was begun in the Police Court yesterday afternoon. The case caled for trial by Mr. Mullowney was that of William C. Flannery and Martin N. Flannery for the alleged assault on Daniel O'Neil!, the member of the Capitol police force. This is the affair that happened on the day of the corner stone celebration. The trouble started in the House restaurant, but the alleged assault took place outside the building where O'Neill's head was cut with a cane Mr. Mullowney made a statement of what he expected to prove, and then called a colored waiter in the restaurant named Lacey. He testified that he waited on the defendants, furnishing them Kentucky ss told of the trouble with Mr. Murray, as heretofore described in The Star, and said that O'Neill appeared upon the and said that O'Neill appeared upon the scene. Witness went away, and he thought that O'Neill put them under arrest.

When they were refused a drink in the bar one of them asked for Mr. Murray, but the latter could not be found. Mr. Flannery then picked up a vinegar bottle, saying, "I guess we'll get Mr. Murray now." Witness thought the bottle was picked up for the purpose of attracting Mr. Murray. When the latter came the defendants were standing there. Mr. Murray fendants were standing there. Mr. Murray struck the young men in the face and ran. Up to that time everything was pleasant, and witness thought the affair was a joke. One of them, he said, broke two on a table and afterward wanted the toilet room, testified that the younger of the defendants was vomiting and the brother was holding his head. Mr. Shillington objected to this testimony for the reason that it had no connection whatever with the case on trial. "I want to show the officer's justification for the arrest," said Mr. Mullowney.

"That you cannot do," replied Mr. Shillington. "His conduct in this case is beyond justification."

The witness was excused.

He was recalled, however, and questioned by Mr. Shillington to show that he was mistaken as to the identity of the men, but witness was positive that he had not made a mistake.

Mr. Thos. Murray, the proprietor of the place, was next sworn, and he testified that when he went into the ladies' room he invited the men into the bar to take a drink. He did this for the purpose of getting them out of the dining room. Witness described the affair that followed substantially as heretofore printed. Witness, in his testi-mony, said that the defendants were full of animal spirits and liquor and on cross-ex-amination Mr. Shillington asked if that was a brand of liquor sold at his bar. Witness said he thought he was using some diplomacy in his efforts to get the defendants out of the ladies' dining room. "Did you ever use any diplomacy before?" Mr. Shillington asked him.
"Yes, sir," was the answer of witness.

"I thought that the best way to deal with persons under the influence of liquor." "Did you ever represent this country as diplomat at a fereign port?"
"I might answer that I have."
"You are not Mr. Van Alen?"
"No, but you look like him."

Witness was cross-examined at length concerning the affair. O'Neill Testifies. Capitol Policeman O'Neill testified that when the young men were on their way out they stopped near the door and wanted to return and see Mr. Murray. Witness ing. This is the first bill of its kind to be introduced in the Senate.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS. Two-Sided Case Tried Today in the Police Court. The Dalrymple-Paine cruelty to animals case was tried in Judge Kimball's court this morning. William B. Dalrymple was charged, as superintendent of the stables of the National Sanitary Company, with permitting to be worked a horse unit for labor Mr. Dalrymple in turn swore out a warrant for Agent Paine of the Humane Society, charging him with cruelty.

Mr. H. E. Davis appeared as counsel for Mr. Dalrymple. Agent Paine stated his side of the case. He said he found the horse in question drawing one of the garbage carts. Witness took the animal from the cart and put it in the stuble in the rear of the fourth precinct station. When witness saw the horse he was on K street northwest, and he permitted the driver to drive to the garbage plant and then he took the animal to the police station. Witness was asked why he permitted the animal to be driven to the plant, and he said he did so because he lid not want the cart load of swill left on the street all day. On cross examination witness did not answer the questions properly, so the judge thought, and he told Agent Palne that if he thought, and he told Agent Paine that if he did not answer the questions properly he would be fined for contempt.

Mr. Davis attempted to show how long the animal was hitched to the vehicle after he first found it, and he thought the time was less than two hours. There were eight sores on the animal, so he said, and the pads rested on them.

Policeman Mohl gave similar testimony. Policeman Mohl gave similar testimony.

Policeman Henry testified that the animal was taken sick with the colic while in the stable, and he took him out in the alley in the fresh air. He also examined the sores on the animal. Mr. Dairymple, he said, called at the station for the horse. He said that Mr. Dairymple admitted that he had charge of the horses of the Sanitary ompany, Agent Paine was recalled, and he said Agent Paine was recalled, and he said that so far as he knew the animal was not fed in the stable at the station.

George Saunders, the colored man who was driving the horse on the day charged, testified that Mr. Paine met him and told him that the horse was under arrest. Mr. Paine followed him to the plant, where the gartage was dumped, and the cart washed. Then he wanted to pull the cart in the yard, but Agent Paine would not let him do so.

Witness said that the animal was fed at 5 o'clock in the morning, and he so told Mr. Paine, but the latter said that that made no difference to him. Counsel questioned witness concerning the colic, and he said, "Wind colic comes from fasting too long without anything to eat."
Judge Kimball examined witness concerning the condition of the animal and he said that the sores had been on the animal's back about twenty days. The pads, he said, rested on the sores.

Mr. Landreau, who has charge of the collection of garbage, gave evidence concerning the illness of the horse at the police station. The ahimal, he said, had been rolling on the cobblestones in the alley and skinned its hips. The sores complained of were dry ones. He first knew of the animal's arrest about 3:30 o'clock.
Other witnesses gave corroborative testimony. Defendant's Story

The defendant testified that the horse in uestion is subject to "corn boils," which result from strong feed. These boils are about the size of hickory nuts, and when they break, the sores are protected by the use of pads. He saw the animal when it went out in the morning. About 3:30 o'clock he received a telephone message saying the animal was sick, and that was the first time he knew where the animal was the first time he knew where the animal was. He replied that if the animal was sick, he knew it was in good hands, and he would let the Humane Society look after it. De-fendant said that with proper care and at-tention the animal will recover while at work.

the responsible party. The charge against Agent Paine was dismissed. The case of Mr. Dalrymple was postponed to hear Mr. Davis on the law in GARRETT PARK'S MAIL.

Charges Made Against the Postmaster

at That Point.

The Post Office Department will today or said there were several members of the metropolitan police force present, but they took no part in the affair, as witness thought they had no authority in the Capithought they had no authority in the Capitol.

Capitol Policeman Rudolph, he said, was the officer who refused to assist him, and he (Rudolph) made the remark: "Let them fight it out."

Witness then told of the affair in the language of the prize ring, and told the court that he had taken lessons in sparring.

This closed the testimony for the day and the court adjourned the case until this afternoon.
